26TH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF APICULTURE.

Bee-keepers from around the world will meet in Adelaide for a week long convention in October, 1977.

More than 1000 delegates from Australia, Europe, Russia, North and South America, South Africa and New Zealand are expected to attend the 26th International Congress of Apiculture, which will be held in the Festival Theatre complex.

Apimondia, the world organisation of apiarists, yesterday accepted an invitation from the Federal Council of Australian Apiarists' Associations to hold the international convention in Adelaide.

The Premier, Mr. Dunstan, welcomed Apimondia's decision and said the State Government would provide a subsidy of up to $5000 towards any deficit which might be incurred.

Mr. Dunstan said the 1000 visitors would spend almost $250,000 during the convention, which would emphasise South Australia's high reputation in the field of bee-keeping and bee-research.

The Premier said his Government attached great importance to the role of such congresses in keeping South Australia in the mainstream of scientific and technological development. The Adelaide Convention Bureau had played a major role in the negotiations for the Congress venue, Mr. Dunstan said.
